forcing a sound judgement in such matters. It is Agriculture that must afford the direct supply of all her greatest wants. It must in this, and in every other country, be the parent of Manufactures and Commerce, and the best means of promoting civilization and population; consequently it ever will be the most universal and useful of arts. In almost all nations, the most powerful in dividuals derive their wealth and consequence from their property in land, cultivated and managed by the husbandman.

Agriculture, therefore, and agriculture alone, can support us without the help of others, in certain plenty, and real dignity. While our ground is covered with corn, and cattle, we can want for nothing. Manufactures and delicacies that we may require

Stay of April next, at the Court House affect our interests. There is probably no country which I shall refer to, that does not possess some animal or vegetable production, or pursue some mode of culture, or management, that might be beneficially introduced into Canada; but with the exception of the countries I have named, and parts of Italy and Switzerland, there are no very interesting Reports of the Agriculture of other parts of Europe, with which I am acquainted at present. The record part willex hibit a concise view of the science of agriculture are thing and the science of agriculture and the science of agriculture and the science at 12 o'clock, noon. countries I have named, and parts of Italy and Switzerland, there are no very interesting Reports of the Agriculture of other parts of Europe, with which I am acquainted at present. The record part willexhibit a coucies view of the science of agriculture, and the principles on which the operations and results thereof, are founded. The third, and remaining parts will apply these principles to the practice of agriculture, adapting them to the climate and other ture, adapting them to the climate and other circumstances of Canada; and conclude with a few observations on that portion of the trade and commerce of this country in which farmers may be directly or indirect

ASSEMBLY.

Convinced as I feel, that the produce of agriculture is the only riches that the people of this country can call their own, and which they can never be deprived of, it has often astonished me, that men of liberal education should, in general, appear so little to regard its improvement or prosperity—in fact it is treated as a subject quite remote from common life, by nearly all who are not immediately engaged in it. They perhaps cannot allow themselves to believe that agriculture alone can furnish the means by which trade and commerce can be carried on successfilly in Canada.

I sincerely hope to induce all who may take the trouble of reading my book, to reflect on the subjects I shall submit for their consideration, and that they will join heartily in promoting necessary improvements, and thus advance the wealth and prosperity of
