A question of some importance, as connected Attention to some importance, as connected with the politics of the day, has been raised in the Court of Queen's Bench, in the case of the QUEEN TS. A Government, the patronage of which, is distributed mysteriously no matter how wisely administered, must be viewed with suspicion, and produce discontent: on the contrary, an open Government which protects all and grants favors to none but those who really deserve them and have the confidence of the Country, must eventually command the support of all who are only desirous of good Government.

A demand was made for my seat, the refusal of which would was made for my seat, the refusal of which would have confessedly jeopardized your dearest interests; and although a compliance with it occasioned to me more of misery and wretchedness than the accumulated crosses and perplexities of thirty-four years' career of business (if they had at once assailed me,) could produce, I did not hesitate for one moment to make the great sacrifice, and yield to the necessity I saw of rescuing Kingston from the danger of the removal of the Seat of Government, which every man admits my resistance to Lord Sydenham's wishes would involve.

My election defeated a powerful party, who would have introduced into Parliament. There was a party, then, inveterately hostile to the removal of the Seat of Government from Toronto to Kingston, who would have united in efforts to defeat any measure introduced for the benefit of Kingston; and the Government party, displeased at my refusal to give place to Mr. Harrison, would not have supported, if they had not opposed me; thus would I have been placed in the unenviable position of incapacity to carry.

In the proud conviction of the rectitude of my determination, and persuaded that those generous friends who so unequivocally manifested their confidence in my zeal and ability to serve them, will give me full credit for candor and sincerity, I offer them the assurance that those were the motives which solely guided my conduct in this to me most painful and infortunate affair, and I respectfully ask, had I resisted Lord Sydenham's urgent request, whether the threatened removal of the Government now to Montreal, would not by most men be attributed to my refusal?—I must, I am sorry, add, egotisfically, that I am noted over Canada for my anxiety to relieve from want, distress, or embarrassments, my fellow men, friend or foe, and that I never yet hesitated to do so; can any man, then, truly suppose me the base recreant to sell the
