THE July Number of the KNICKERBOCKER, on NEW-YORK MONTHLY MAGAZINE, commenced a new volume, and formed the twenty-eighth number issued under its present proprietorship and supervision. In the brief Advertisement by which the new series was introduced to the public, it was observed, that no exertions nor expence would be spared to render the Magazine honorable to American Periodical Literature, and acceptable to the public, whose patronage was only so far solicited, as it should seem to be deserved—that the assistance of some of the ablest pens in the country had been secured in behalf of the work, and that, as it was thereafter to depend rather upon its merits, than upon frequent announcements of the future excelle we to which it was to affain, it was submitted to its readers, with the confident hope that it would prove deserving of the public favor. This hope has not been disappointed. Upwards of two thousand highly favorable notices of the work have appeared, at intervals, in the different journals of the United States, including those of the first class in every section of the country; and that silent but convincing sign, a steady increase of patronage, has born still stronger testimony, that the literary labors presented to the public through the medium of this periodical have not been undervalued. While therefore the publishers acknowledge with gratitude the kindness with which their exertions have been received, they would take this occasion to repeat, that their efforts will be untiring, without regard to labor or expense, to cater acceptably for the various literary appetites of a wide national community.

It is a fact worthy of mention, that since this Magazine passed into the hands, and under the direction of its present proprietors and editors, not a dissenting voice has been heard from the entire American press, in regard to its general ments.—It may be observed farther, that of nearly five hundred specimen numbers which have been sent to individuals who desired to judge of the character of the work HE July Number of the KNICKERBOCKER, OR ly believed,) the publishers can safely promise that no periodical foreign or domestic, will be per-mitted to exceed in varity and interest the Knickerbocker Magazine. As the present proprietors can with truth affirm that they have hitherto left no pledge unfulfilled, it is hoped that this declara tion will not be considered as a 'promise made to the ear;' only to be 'broken to the hope.'

The subjeined is a brief plan of the work:

Its ORIGINAL RAPERS will be so varied as to form a combination of the USEVUL with the ENTERTAINING and ACREABLE. These will embrace the departments of Useful Science, Essays, Tales, and Poetry which may deserve the name.

The LITERARY NOTICES will comprise summary

The EDITORS' TABLE will be devoted to the familiar discussion of local and general matters—including the Drama, the Fine Arts, etc.

For the first time, and in consideration of the commencement of a new volume, a few of the many favourable opinions which have been expressed by some of the most prominent American and English journals concerning this Magazine, are ventured below:

NEW-YORK JOURNAL OF COMMERCE. The Keickerbocker.—This monthly periodical is now so well known, that it hardly needs commendation; having established for itself a character amongst the ablest and most entertaining publications in the land. We have frequently available of extracts from its actions a nation courselves of extracts from its columns, particularly in the poetical department, which, in our humble opinion, possesses a higher merit than, since the death of Mrs. Hemans, can be justly awarded to the poetry en mass of any other periodical with which we are acquainted, either domestic or foreign. Many of the prose writings are also excellent. The Knickerbocker, at one time, sank to a low ebb in public estimation, and not without reason; but since it passed into the hands without reason; but since if passed into the hands of its present conductors, it has not only retrieved its character, but taken rank far above what it ever was before.

NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER.

The Knickerbocker seems to increase in attraction as it advances in age. The last number exhibits a variety of contributions, unsurpassed in number or ability. We learn, indeed, that all the profits of the work so far have been expended in the procurement of the best original supplies for its pages. We copy the annexed notice of the work from the New-York Mirror:

"We hope it will not be inferred, from our omission to notice the several numbers of the Knickerbocker Magazine, as they have appeared, that we have therefore lost sight of its hich character and increasing excellence. The Knickerbocker has become decidedly one of the best magazines in America. The proprietors have succeeded in procuring for its pages the first talent of this country, as well as valuable aid from distingushed foreign sources, etc.

It is with heartfelt gratitude for the unprecedented support already extended to the Ladies Companion, the publisher states, that arrangements are in progress for securing the aid of some of the first writers in America and Europe in behalf of this Literary enterprise. At this early period, it would be perhaps incurring their displeature, and the just censure of the public, in case of a failure, to exhibit their names to the world, before the arrangements are with certainty concluded:—suffice it to say, that there are those among them, whose writings have shed lustre upon literature.

The publisher in conclusion, appeals with confidence to the pages of the Ladies Companion, for the last five volumes as an earnest of his ceaseless efforts to maintain the enviable and lofty standing the work at present occupies in the community.

The selections are made from the principal European Magazines, viz:—London Mirror,—Oriental Review.—Magazine of the Beau Monde—Metropolitan.—Chamber's Edinburgh.—Liverpoal Albion.—World of Fashion.—Ladies Musuem.—La Belle Assemble.—Court Magazine.—New Monthly Magazine.—Liverpool Journal.
