Mr. Hincks is a public journalist, and in every respect a public man. He is property about which we have a right to talk, to write, and if we so please, we have even a license to laugh at him. This latter, however, it is not our wish to do. We take up the Jen in seriousness and soberness, and we mean simp'y to criticize his conduct since he became an active legislator for the good people of Oxford: Mr. Hincks in a late speech took to himself the credit of being the leading re-form journalist of Upper Canada. He pretended to have spoken out when even a dun-geon stared him in the face; and in fact, if his word be taken for sterling money, when blackness and darkness brooded over the political atmosphere, he Mr. H. was the "Jupiter Tonens" of the reform party. So far so good. Every body will take this declaration for what it was worth, current coin-his political history and character considered!

Meantime, what has he done since he came to Kingston? His deeds are matters of yesterday, let us see what they are. If we are not vastly mistaken we shall prove one of three things: 1st. either he is a very thoughtless, rash, nay furious kind of person, or 2d. to the "no less a sum than a million and he has changed te-totally his political views, or lastly, he is exceedingly corrupt, and from the beginning, his end and object have been selfish advancement; and that he has had a single eye to this only.

A week or two before the meeting of Parliament, every one who reads the Examiner, knows the virulence with which he attacked and denounced what he called "the Coalition Ministry." He absolutely foamed at the mouth about Mr. Thomas Parke accepting office, and the very week he came here to at omo, in the exclusion of New tend to his parliamentary duties he boldly nay audaciously, proclaimed this gentleman to the electors of Middlesex as utterly unworthy of their confidence. At a caucus of the reformers held previous to the day Parliament met, his manner and conduct were so offensive and furious, that he disgusted and actually drove away several old and prudent members of the party, (Mr. Thorburn for instance,) because they would not go with him to extreme measures against the Ministry. On the debate relative to the election of the Speaker, he was amongst the first to declare that he would vote for Mr. Cuvillier, because he knew that, that gentleman had no confi dence whatever in them. In fact, his maiden st them, that for a year or two chants of New York, and Boston speech was nothing but a declaration of ani osity to them. We apprehend we have made out postu-late the first; but if it is not satisfactory to our readers, we have more facts in store, which space will not permit us to use at present.

In regard to our second position, we affirm, and the journals of the House will make good our assertion, that since the Bank of Issue project was mooted, he has never once, on any government question voted against that ame Ministry he was so forward to denounce He now very complacently talks of the illustrious nobleman at the head of the government; addresses Mr. Draper as his particular certainly not. At first, he could not board any where but with Mr. Baldwin: now he never comes the great lakes and the ocean; and dax would deprive us of this advanwithin hail of him, but associates entirely with Lower Canada tories. Now, we have no too great a subject to discussed the summary, and we only tough only to the summary and the Parliament may do, we feel per-will never be sanctioned. But so poly of Banking obtains, and a tax case, his conduct in regard to Mr. Parke was invidious and altogether inexcusable.

A writer in the last Chronicle, whom we take o be a man who is every thing, any thing or nothing, as it may happen to suit his interest, has thought proper to impugn the motives and conduct of Mr. Baldwin. Be it known unto all and sundry, and whom it may concern, that this same person is an Engineer employed occasionally upon roads by government. When he denounce Mr. Baldwin, therefore, for voting for the public works of the first class, he has an eye to his bread and butter. Mr. Hincks and him are now contributors to the Chronicle. To this we have no objection, but it is too bad of the EXPECTANT POLICE MAGISTRATE of Kingston, to open his columns to the selfish slander of an honourable gentleman, whose public conduct, at all events, has made manifest his love of rectitude above his love of place.

this rapid increase will have the effect of redu-cing the enormous rents now charged for houses; we think next year they will be at a fair rate. We are sorry to learn that mercantile busi-ness is very dull; the increase of population and consequent demand has not corresponded with the advance of competion, owing to the scarcity of houses. Merchandize is cheap—competition is great; house-rent high; taxes high; produce high; money scarce; and if our merchants do high; money scarce; and if our merchants do not have difficulty in keeping their heads above water, for the next six months, we dont know how many beans make five.

A correspondent of the Montreal Commercial Messenger, living at Brockville, writes in the following sensible manner:

"A rumour was prevalent here on some days "A rumour was prevalent here on some days last week, that companies were forming, of Volunteers, on different parts of our frontier, to make a bold push for the delivery of MLeod, vi et armis; or, in the event of failure, to seize a few of the leading men of the villages bordering on the lake and river, and conveying them back into the Canadian woods for safe keeping, until M'Leod is delived up. Sirs;—Among many of the evils charged against the Feudal Tenure of Lower Canada, none has perhaps been more bitterly inveigled at than the Droi' de Banalite, or the seignorial right of flouring the wheat of their tenantry. The seignior with his exclusive privilege, and in so non wheat producing a country as Lower Canada, satisfies himself with the fourteenth part for milling—while we with our boasted rights, and where mill arrivilege is come to all are convenied. while we with our boasted rights, and where mill privilege is open to all, are compelled to a payment of the twelfth! So large an impost we may be certain was made by proprietors by far more interested in the profit of their mill properties than in the welfare of the people.

CERTAIN CURE FOR SICK HEADACHE, which has been used in families, every mem-ber of which has had sick headache from infancy, as a constitutional family complaint, and has cu-red effectually in every instance yet known, amounting to many hundreds. It is not unpleasant to the taste, and does not prevent the daily avocations of one using it; it must be persevered in, and the cure is gradual, but certain and permain, and the cure is gradual, but certain and permanent. Instances are constantly multiplying where this distressing complaint is completely relieved and cured, although of years standing, by the use of Dr. Spohn's celebrated remedy. One decided preference is its pleasantness, having none of the nauscating effect of common drugs.

It is so perfectly safisfactory, that the proprietor has given direction for his agents to refund the price to any one who is not pleased with, and even cured by it. He hopes also that this may secure its great benefits to the distressed sufferers who are laboring under Headache.
