

MARRIED FOR MONEY.

Strange Revelations of an English Divorce Case.

A FORCED WEDDING.

Last Friday night's London cable says: The English divorce case was brought up for preliminary hearing to-day. The action is brought by Mrs. Arthur Sebright, who asked to have her marriage declared void on the grounds that she was induced to consent to have the ceremony performed by fear, and that the marriage has never been consummated.

The plaintiff's private assets that the defendant, coveting her fortune of $200,000, managed to inveigle her into financial transactions which finally left her penniless as a time when she was to be divorced.

Mrs. Sebright was ordered to be witness against her husband. She testified that through her father she had inherited in her own name $130,000, in addition to a reversion of $150,000 on the death of her mother.

This, the witness said, she refused to do. Mr. Sebright next requested witness to meet him alone. She did so. He took her to a place unknown to her, but which she learned was the Registry office.

The Registrar being sworn deposed that when Mrs. Sebright was before him she was agitated, but that she repeated the words of the Registrar, and signed the necessary papers for a marriage form when Mr. Sebright took her hand.

A Panama despatch says: Advice from Jamaica says: The decay of this colony which was once called "the brightest jewel in the British crown," may be gathered from the following statistics.

It is recalled that the Legislative Council of Jamaica, assured that the continuation of the bounty given by foreign Governments to producers of beet-sugar must before long prove ruinous to the cane-sugar industry.

A Hudson, N. Y., despatch says: Mrs. John R. Dana has for some time been suffering from heart disease and cerebral troubles. On Saturday she was about all day, but at night seemed to be worse.

A SUICIDE INCARNATE.

She Brutally Shoots Her Wife and Family Down - Hanged to a Tree by Her Neighbors.

A Larned, Kansas, despatch says: Seven years ago a beautiful young lady named Lillian fell in love with Sam Purdie, a young man of about twenty, who was a miller of nature and was not by any means averse to the idea of matrimony.

The plaintiff's private assets that the defendant, coveting her fortune of $200,000, managed to inveigle her into financial transactions which finally left her penniless as a time when she was to be divorced.

Mrs. Sebright was ordered to be witness against her husband. She testified that through her father she had inherited in her own name $130,000, in addition to a reversion of $150,000 on the death of her mother.

This, the witness said, she refused to do. Mr. Sebright next requested witness to meet him alone. She did so. He took her to a place unknown to her, but which she learned was the Registry office.

The Registrar being sworn deposed that when Mrs. Sebright was before him she was agitated, but that she repeated the words of the Registrar, and signed the necessary papers for a marriage form when Mr. Sebright took her hand.

A Panama despatch says: Advice from Jamaica says: The decay of this colony which was once called "the brightest jewel in the British crown," may be gathered from the following statistics.

It is recalled that the Legislative Council of Jamaica, assured that the continuation of the bounty given by foreign Governments to producers of beet-sugar must before long prove ruinous to the cane-sugar industry.

A Hudson, N. Y., despatch says: Mrs. John R. Dana has for some time been suffering from heart disease and cerebral troubles. On Saturday she was about all day, but at night seemed to be worse.

The heres we read of are not like the ones we see. If a man is born here, as the world goes now, he must hustle around lively enough to stay great.

A FURIOUS SUNDAY.

Ludicrous Result of Enforcing the Blue Laws - Funny State of Affairs at La Crosse.

A La Crosse, Wis., despatch says: The Law and Order League has been making vigorous efforts to enforce the law regarding saloons to be closed on Sunday. The saloon-keepers have retaliated by demanding the strict enforcement of a Sunday law.

The Chicago Times says: The plans and schemes of the Canadian Pacific, which at the present time seem to be reaching out in all directions on American soil and striving for American business, contribute an element to the pool situation that is at least a prolific source of comment and speculation.

A Philadelphia despatch says: An explosion occurred in the city of Philadelphia, yesterday afternoon, which blew out the rear wall, badly injuring a number of young men, women and girls, and demolishing the lives of over 100 more.

The Reformers will bring up a candidate for opposition to Mr. N. F. Davis, of Regina. The general expectation is that the local election will take place the first or second week in December.

A Montreal despatch says: Dr. Dupont, a specialist in the diseases of women and children, entered an action against Mr. A. K. Mack of this city, to recover a certain amount of fees which he alleged were owing to him on account of the patient.

A Monopoli despatch says: Col. East Walker, a prominent member of the Legislative Council of Ontario, has been elected to the position of Speaker of the House of Assembly.

A New York Committee appointed to arrange a celebration in the United States, has reported to the President.

A Paris cable says: A meeting was held here this evening for the purpose of celebrating the 50th anniversary of Queen Victoria's accession to the throne of Great Britain.

A patient of a local physician received from him the following prescription: Sig. Shake and apply externally.

CANADIAN PACIFIC.

Reaching After Chicago Business Through the Web.

The Chicago Times says: The plans and schemes of the Canadian Pacific, which at the present time seem to be reaching out in all directions on American soil and striving for American business, contribute an element to the pool situation that is at least a prolific source of comment and speculation.

A Philadelphia despatch says: An explosion occurred in the city of Philadelphia, yesterday afternoon, which blew out the rear wall, badly injuring a number of young men, women and girls, and demolishing the lives of over 100 more.

The Reformers will bring up a candidate for opposition to Mr. N. F. Davis, of Regina. The general expectation is that the local election will take place the first or second week in December.

A Montreal despatch says: Dr. Dupont, a specialist in the diseases of women and children, entered an action against Mr. A. K. Mack of this city, to recover a certain amount of fees which he alleged were owing to him on account of the patient.

A Monopoli despatch says: Col. East Walker, a prominent member of the Legislative Council of Ontario, has been elected to the position of Speaker of the House of Assembly.

A New York Committee appointed to arrange a celebration in the United States, has reported to the President.

A Paris cable says: A meeting was held here this evening for the purpose of celebrating the 50th anniversary of Queen Victoria's accession to the throne of Great Britain.

A patient of a local physician received from him the following prescription: Sig. Shake and apply externally.

It was given to a drug clerk to be put up, but he did not know what "nitrate of Jenie" was, and it was given to the head clerk, who, having the name of Jenie in his name, had Jenie, a large-sized mouse, he took it to the doctor's office, and confessed the latter explained that he was writing a letter when the patient called, and must have written the word in the prescription. He was about to write in the name Jenie when interrupted.—Providence Journal.

MARK TWAIN'S NEW LECTURE.

A Yankee's Adventure at the Court of King Arthur.

At the regular meeting of the Military Service Institution on Governor's Island, N. Y., on Thursday night, Mr. Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) read a learned essay on "The War Experiences of a Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court."

"Ladies and gentlemen: This fragment which by your courtesy I am to read here to-night is a story—a satire if you please—which I began to write some time ago and which is not finished; so what I propose to do under the circumstances is to read the first chapter just as it is and then in brief synopsis or outline tell the rest of it to you as the dying cowboy advised his spiritual adviser to do—just leave out the details and leave in the bottom facts. It would be impossible to tell much of the story in so short a time as we have and I will begin at the beginning."

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

A KING'S USUAL DEATH.

The Story Told by the Agonized Features of an Egyptian Mummy.

A new light has been cast upon one of the most interesting passages of ancient Egyptian history by the unearthing of the mummy of King Sakaenra Te-akou, on the 9th of last June, at the Boulaq Museum. As we have seen, Sakaenra, the Theban hero of the legendary romance contained in the Egyptian Papyrus, placed himself at the head of the nation's rising against the Hyskos tyranny, and began that famous war of independence which ended some generations later in the total rout and expulsion of the foreign invaders.

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

STORIES FROM SAVAGE LANDS.

Some Remarkable Stories That White Travelers Have Not Been Told.

Travelers have told many strange tales about new countries they have visited. A great many wonderful ways have been shown by sailors and traders who are often too ignorant to tell the truth about what they see even if they can resist the temptation to tell a good story at the expense of accuracy. The difference that may occur in the accounts given by an ignorant and an intelligent man of the same thing.

Capt. Lancaster, many years ago, told of a wonderful plant he found on the sea islands of an island in the East Indies. He said he found the shore covered with small white growing up like young trees. When he tried to pull them up he was surprised to find that they shrank down to the ground and then sank out of sight unless he held on to them. In the course of time Mr. Darwin examined the wonderful products of nature which Capt. Lancaster had discovered.

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"

Mr. Clemens then went on to say, reading from the first chapter of his forthcoming book that in exploring Warwick Castle in England he met a stranger who interested him greatly. They became very friendly and one day the stranger said, "You know about the transmigration of souls; do you know about the transmigration of spoons and bottles?"