The Crowded Train Crashes Through a Burning Bridge.

THRILLING AND SICKENING SIGHTS.

Human Ghasts Plunder and Rob the Dead and Dying.

A Chicago special from Forest, Ill., gives the following full particulars of the great railway catastrophe. All railway horrors passed three miles east of Chatsworth on Wednesday night, when an excursion train on the Toledo, Peoria & Warsaw Road dropped through a burning bridge and over 100 people were killed and four times that number were more or less badly injured.

IS THE ONE OF TRAIN WRECKING.

This is an awful one to contemplate, but it has its adherents. They point to the fact that there were a lot of thieves about the members of the abolition working to gether, and the abolition working to gether, and the abolition working to gether...

THE AFTERMATH OF THE DEED.

While the light had been going on men had been dying, and there was not so many wounded to take out of the wreck as there had been four hours before. But in the meantime the country had been aroused, and Piper City had been alerted.

SCENES IN THE DIFFERENT PLACES.

Where bodies lay were heartrending. The majority of the bodies were mangled in a frightful manner, many of them having their brains entirely torn away, leaving the brains and limbs had been torn off. About 5 o'clock one of the Chicago Times staff visited the scene.

IT WAS SIMPLY HORRIBLE.

Mr. E. A. Van Zandt, of Peoria, to a reporter: "No words of mine can describe the awfulness of the scene. I was in the rear sleeper and was in no danger, as the one in the six sleepers was more than shaken up, but even there we got a bad then rushed out of the car and ran forward to the wreck. The scene was horrible. The only light was the flames of the burning bridge, and above the day coaches were men, women and children, dressed in the clothing of the car and in their deathly faces they had met their death twenty-seven corpses at once.

THE ACTOR AND HIS WIFE.

De Bensaude Arrested for Rigging His Wife's Door Bell.

A London cable says: Mr. De Bensaude was on Wednesday arrested for rigging his wife's door bell. The door bell of the front door of the London house of Miss Violet Cameron's sister, Mrs. Wood, was hauled up before a magistrate at the Marylebone Police Court, and much evidence was given.

THE BRIDGE WAS ON FIRE.

When the train drew out of Peoria at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening it was loaded to its utmost capacity. Every berth in the six sleepers was taken, and the day cars were crowded with passengers.

STATEMENT OF A PASSENGER.

Mr. Hazen, of Port Madison, Iowa, says the train was running about thirty miles an hour when the accident occurred. He felt a sudden jolt and found himself and his wife fastened under the seats.

THE DEED OF DEATH WAS DONE.

Car crushed into cars, coaches piled one on top of another, and the twinkling of an eye 140 people found an instant death and fifty more were so hurt that they could not live.

THE LATEST PARTICULARS.

Charnel houses and hospitals made up to-night what has been the peaceful village of Chatsworth. Of 800 merry excursionists, journeying by rail to the Falls of Niagara, two hundred and forty were dead.

AN EYE-WITNESS STORY.

P. C. Church, commercial traveller arrived from Peoria this morning and gave many incidents of the disaster. "We did not know it until yesterday morning," said he, "and the first report was that several hundred had been killed.

NEW YORK EXPECTATIONS.

Of Catching up to London in the Race for Population.

On the basis of the number of names in the New York City directory, the population of New York, from the Southern boundary of Yonkers to the Battery, is not less than 1,600,000. The population of Brooklyn is probably over 750,000, and when you account other communities immediately dependent on, and geographically united to, the city of New York, the present population of the metropolitan district is more than 2,600,000.

CONNECTED WITH THE ROAD.

"I have met with queer characters in my day," remarked a conductor on one of the city roads last evening. "At Alhambra, Robert S. Hoyle, of London, Ont., and Thos. Muller, Windsor, Ont., two of the gang on the approach of the police, jumped overboard. One, said to be the ringleader, reached shore and escaped. The other was taken off one of the blades of the paddle wheel by Deputy Sheriff Downs and George Campbell. A large amount of cash was found in the pocket of one of the gang."

DEATH IN A MOST HORRIBLE FORM.

It was certain, if the twisted wood of the broken cars caught fire, and to fight the fire there was not a drop of water, and only some fifty badly-bodied men who still had presence of mind and nerve enough to do their duty.

THE ENTIRE BRIDGE OF THREE.

It was caught and held down by broken work. Finally, when relief was being sent to the bridge and feebly said, "My wife first. I'm afraid the child is dead." So they carried out the mother, and a broken seat was taken off from the car, and the child was held in her arms.

A Detroit dispatch says: A gang of thirteen pickpockets and general thieves went to Put-in-Bay yesterday morning on the steamer City of Cleveland. Their conduct on the way was so outrageous that the officers of the boat put them ashore and refused to let them return on board.

A SUN DANCE.

The editor of the Fort Meade Gazette has been attending a sun dance at the Blood Reserve near that town, and has come back with his sanctum considerably disgusted. He says: "It was the same old thing, the same feature come to the same old time. The worst ceremony is the 'making of the pipe.' On this occasion there did not appear to be any candidates; but the whites said, not a victim for their diabolical but the payment of $100 for the torture by the crowd, three or four hundred got about the flesh between two fingers. It was a small stick, about two inches long, was run into the incision, and was fastened. The same operation was repeated on the top of the crown of the head, and on the ends was fastened to the stick in each hand. Talking to the stick in each hand, the candidate for honors yawned at them all his might. Then leaning back he threw his full weight on the ropes, and suspending by the sticks in his breast, danced, and fell forward around the pole. Finally he fell face down, and he fell on the ground. Before the operation began, an old party got out and counted the young man's coxins. The list was not a very long one. He stole a gun, and he stole some horses, and he stole some arrows and probably regretted that he had not stolen more while he was about it. The old party did not relate how many clothes he had stolen, but he had robbed the young man then himself of the old fellow, and threw his arms around the middle man and prayed to the sun. This evidently put him in better spirits and the sun related above proceeded. Then, tired out, every one rushed for water, and every one had a drink of the sun dance, and every one was very sober. It was the last one they would ever go to. But they all said the same last year. Such an exhibition was certainly pitiable enough, so far as the Indians were concerned, but it was utterly disgraceful in view of the fact that it was prompted by whites."
