THE MISSING BOAT.

Cool Behavior of the Passengers and Steadiness of the Crew.

A last (Friday) night's London cabl says: The passengers and crew of the City of Montreal were taken off the York City by the tug Mount Etna, and landed Queenstown. All were accounted for excep the thirteen persons in the missing boat It is learned that shortly after the passengers had gone to bed on the night of the 10th, the ship being in latitude 43 north at the time, they were aroused by an alarm of fire. A scene of consternation ensued, and the passengers were greatly terrified when they found out the true state of affairs. The smoke caused by the fire was suffocating The passengers dressed and got on deck as quickly as possible, and with but little appearance of panie. The fire originated in the cotton stored in the after main hold. Nine streams of water were soon working on the flames, and the course of the vesse was shaped toward Newfoundland, 400 miles distant. The flames spread with great rapidity, and soon had burst with terrific force through the midway and after hatches, the heat being intense. becoming evident that it was impossible to save the ship, a momentary panic ensued. The boats were lowered and passengers contained two stewards, two seamen and seven passingers, and there in but little doubt that the whole boat load perished. The boat did not contain a full crew, and left the City of Montreal against the captain's orders, as there was time to take many more in it. The other survivors consider the fate of the occupants of the lost boat as a judgment for their cow-

A barque was sighted shortly after the boats left the steamer, and her crew was preparing to pick up the survivors when the steamer York City, attracted by the flames of the burning vessel, which were shooting up a hundred feet in the air, here down and with difficulty took all hands on board. The rescued people were treated with the atmost kindness by the captain and crew of the York City, and the passengers speak with much feeling of the consideration which was accorded to them. The York City proceeded to London after landing the City of Moutreal's passengers and crew at Queenstown. The survivors are unanimous in declaring that the officers and crew of the City of Montreal did their duty nobly and skilfully.

The steamer City of Montreal carried no first cabin passengers. The value of her cargo was $350,000, and the steamer was worth $400,000. The crew numbered si

The boats were eight in number, and consisted of four lifeboats and four pinnaces. These were launched and stocked with provisions. The flames spread with great fierceness, and the efforts to quench them it was soon found were futile. At so'clock in the morning the passengers were marshalled on deck, preparatory to entering the boats. Many of them were weeping, but on the whole they were quiet and orderly. The family groups presented a sight pitiful to see, as they huddled together in fear and trembling. There was a heavy sea running, and it was with great difficulty that the boats were kept from being smashed. The crew worked splendidly and all the passengers were placed in the boats in a comparatively short time. How the boats floated with their heavy loads is a miracle. As the last boat was pulling off from the ship several of the passengers and crew were seen aft.. They had been overlooked, and were screaming to the boats to return. They were subsequently bravely rescued half dead from the effects of smoke and heat. The masts of a ship were seen on the horizon, but ten hours clapsed before if came near.

Supreme Court which discloses not only scott's action, but the fact that he was not alone in this stupendous defalcation. This suit is against John R. Dunn, Scott's col league, for $140,000.

The documents included in this cas embrace an affidavit by the defaulter, which is in truth a confession of his theft. Scott. according to the complaint, was for twenty years a trusted employee of the Manhattan Company up to June 1st, 1885. In the latter part of his service he was the paying teller of the bank. Most of the time he had in his custody daily over $1,000,000. On June 1st, 1885, he absconded with $160,000. and a number made up a purse and wagered Scott states that at various times prior to June 1st, 1885, he extracted small sums of money from the safe, which aggregated $10,000. This he used in speculation. About this time there was a change in the administration of the bank. Scott feared the change might cause an investigation and expose his irregularities. John R. Dann was practicing law then and Scott hastened to him for advice. Dunn asked him how much money was within his reach. Scott replied that at all times there was over a million dollars in his charge. Dunn, addressing Scott, said "My advice to you is to take $1,000,000. It will be enough to cripple the bunk and will enable you to go to Canada. If yo take a small amount people will laugh at you, but if you take a large amount people the bank to compromise.'

Dunn advised Scott to get an old suit of clothing, shave off his moustache, travel tral Park on the following afternoon. When he went to the bank the mext day he took 300,000 in gold and silver certificates of the denomination of 25,000, $1,000 and Dunn at Central Park, and they went to a secinded spot and talked. A Plucky Correspondent.

Camille Farcy, a newspaper correspondent, accompanied the Frem expedition in Algiers. The commander was a martinet who hated newspapers and newspaper men. He compelled the correspondents to sign a document which made their mis fruitless. Farcy signed it under protest and announced that he should elude the censorship, if possible, accepting the penalty as a matter of course. A spy was set upon him. In less than a week a letter was intercepted. It contained criticisms on the general. A court-martial was summoned. Farcy made no defence. The verdict was brief :

" Camille Farcy is condemned to be shot at 6 in the morning." He was taken to Tunis for execution The train arrived at 5.30. A ball was in progress at the Governor-General's house, He asked Farcy if he could do anything for him before he died. "Yes," he replied, "I would like to have a waltz before I die." The Governor introduced him to his daughter. At 6 he bowed to the guests.

He was conducted to the guard. He refused to have his eyes bandaged and demanded permission to give the word of " May all journalists do as I have done,"
