A STORY OF THE DAY.

Some Strange Devices in England for Reeping Prople Awake in Church. Mention is made in early English history of some remarkable bequests. Among she most singular was that of John Radge, who on the 17 h of April, 1725, bequenthed so the parish of Trysull, in Staffordebire, a poor man might be employed to go about the ohurch during the delivery of the oradle. The definitions are imperfet, reincidentally to drive dogs out of the sacred edifice. It would appear from this that either the sermons in those days were long comparatively wealthy men to set spart a portion of their worldly goods for keeping leading any guide, or, rather, it is a misa church in Cheshire forty or fifty years around during the service carrying a long wand. If any of the congregation succombed to drowsiness and fell asleep, they were awakened with a gentle tap on the head from the wand. At Dunchurch a similar oustom existed. There a person bearing a stout wand, shaped like a hayfork at the end, stepped stealthily up and down the aisles, topohad him so effectually that he speedily was oroused from his dreams, this being sometimes done by fitting the fork to the
