Archbishop Walsh Says the Pope is Opposed to Paraell-

SLADSTONE TO REGAIN POWER. A so-day's Rome cable says; In an interview here yesterday Archbishop Walsh, of Dublin, expressed estisfaction that in a long audience with the Pope he had found His Holiness perfectly acquainted with the position of affairs in Ireland. "The Pope," he said, "has ollowed every change in the situation with sympathy. He has recognized that by eral means we will eventually obtain our ights. He has never shought of interfering with Irish affairs while the questions were of a purely political character. Those who presume that the Pope would take any ection against Ireland were badly informed. There may exist parties desirons of drawing the Vationa into a line of policy against us, but His Holiness will not lend an car to these interfering voices. He fully approves the attitude of the Irish episcopate during the present internal crisis, and desires enion and common tactics on the part of

Is reply to questions, the Archbishop said the orisis in Ireland would not last after the coming general election. Parnell has been led savray by some adherents making believe that the whole people marched behind him. He will soon realize she posite. When defeated at the elections he will understand his error, and will seek to repair the wrong which the present rupture has done to the cause of Home Mr. Gladstone's victory in the election is nearly certain. He will have at least a majority of fifty, sufficient to pass the Home Rale Bill in the House of Commons. Possibly he will not have enough strength to overcome the opposition of the Lords, but Gladstone will reform the existing electoral law, so as ultimately to assure his party of a triumph. The suocess of Home Rule is only a question of or even indictment, of any person connected time and cannot be long delayed.
