Tragic Death of a Spechor to the Presbyrian General Assemblyrto Detroit, A Detroit despatch dated last night says:
At 2 80 the church was packed. No sconer had the Moderator called order than Judge S. M. Breckenridge, of St. Louis, resumed the debate on the Briggs case. "I have sen requested to say a few words on the egal uspects of this question." He then ded for alone fifteen minutes to sound the relation of Union Seminary to the excembly. He closed with the words, "It is not possible to do anything but disresy should not be appointed to teach our young men preparing for the ministry. The Assembly adjourned till to-morrow morning, and the banquet tonight was postponed, a prayer meeting og held instead. Judge Breckenridge was the leader of the St. Louis bar, high in social standing, distinguished in his profession, honored by his church, beloved by all who knew him, and will be mourned by the whole country. His father was Dr. John Breekenridge, professor in Princeton; his grandfather, Dr. Samuel Miller, also of Princeton. His body was taken by special train to St. Louis, a committee of the Assembly accompanying. He was one of the most useful and prominent siders in the oburch. He was over 60 years old.

L. on the ground of abandonment and non-support. Bishop Littlejohn, of the piscopal diocess of Long Island, was a witness in court for plaintiff, who is his daughter. The divorce suit and the appassance of the bishop as a witness caused a lively discussion in Episcopal circle which is still going on. In view of this Bishop Littlejohn last month convened the bishops of four of the most prominent licosees as an ecolesiastical court on s mmittee of investigation as to the suffi cient and excusable ground for the Jentin divorce case. Churchman who are mor or less well versed in ecolesisation krich and judgments say the case stands in history without a parallel. As the result of what the quarteste of bishops learned they have recorded as their verdict the opinion that Maud E. Littlejohn was never the legal wife of Almen F. Jinks, the marriage being null and void ab initio. The bishops referred to are Bishop Williams, Con-nections; Bishop Scarboro, New Jersey; Bishop Starkey, Newark, and Bishop Potter, New York.

Bishop Littlejohn is on record as strongly deprecating the looseness of the divorce laws and the slipshod methods of courts. His object in convening his consecrated brethren was to get their certificate in support of the position that Mrs Jenke had got a divorce for such a cause as the Protestant Episcopal Church recognizes, and that he himself in becoming a witness for her had kept well within the lines of his lodging. sacred duty.
