Terrible Charges Brought Against Catholic Clergymen.

BUT WHO OAR BELIEVE THEM? A Montreal despatch says : The Canada Revne, the leading French Canadian weekly, in to-day's issue, contains a series of re- CORBETT IS NOW markabl earticles in regard to the relations of clergy and laity. The language used is very outspoken, and in some instances uffects most severely on the persons reerred to. One of the articles asks if after giving to the clergy riches, consideration respect and the highest positions, it is too much to ask that they should leave to the people their wives ? Roplying to the charge, of looking after sensations only, the same article mays that it was the duty of the ournal to refer to these sad scaudals, but a writer and a thinker certainly finds more laskinonge schism, where the stubof a Bishop and the brutality of a priest threw a whole population of believers into hereay; the Chambly case, when a child was exposed to die without baptism because its father did not pay the tax ; the Lake Megantic affair when a woman was opened on the order of a priest, without a doctor, without anyone to establish the death, for the sole object of Orleans, and the great John L. Sullivan, like a major and the men eyed each other returned to its place in the dead mother end buried with her. "What a contrast," it goes on to say, "between these two members of the same Church, of the same bers of the same doctrine, one of whom will not sacrifice two dollars to baptize a child, while the other risks the cacrifice of a life to baptize a being which he does not know to be living; and the he does not know to be living; and the question of the Sisters of Providence, who was not for two minutes and after water have established a banquet-catering system, and who tender like regular cookshop-keepers for banquets given outside of Mont-real, and that without paying any patent, loense or tax."

Referring again to the scandal the article what has taken place between his own graphic report : family and the priest who is to-day acknowledged for the defence of the case to be subject to human failings. A third article declares that the clergy
