An Allogan, Mich., despatch says: Albert Reynolds shot and instantly killed Bert Moore yesterday. Two months ago Moore and Reynolds were in Montana, and made arrangements to come to this city together. Reynolds found he could not get his business into shape at the appointed time. So at the suggestion of Mrs. Reynolds, she and Moore started, leaving the husband in Montana. Coming on later he discovered one or two places on the route where Moore, who was an unmarried man, had registered at hotels as Moore and wife. On reaching Allegan he found Moore and his wife had been suit against both, charging bigamy. The case was settled.
