A WELL KNOWN HYMN.

Hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," The hymn, "Lead, Isindly Light," has secured a permanent place in "our worship of the lips." Its author, Cardinal Newman, or plain John Newman, as he preferred to be called, was a man of deep spirituality of life and a beautiful disposition. There is, said Henry Serbohm to the British Association lately ally one polar basin; the folative distribution of land and water and the geographical distribution of light and heat in the arctic region are absolutely unique. In no other part of the world is a cimilar climate to be found. The distribution of land and water round the South Pole is almost the converse of that round the North Pole.
