The publisher of the Reporter is desirous of securing 5,000 readers before the 1st of January, 1895, and has decided to offer the paper for balance of year for only 25 cents, strictly in advance. HE REPORTER, now in its 10th year, has reached a circulation and influence not even dreamed of when first issued. It is all printed at home on a large steam-power press, and in point of make-up, get-up and typographical appearance is second to none in the eastern districts. Its staff of correspondents is large and every village and hamlet in the surrounding country is heard from in its columns. The printing for nearly all the fairs in the county is done at the Reporter office, and as the prize lists and other interesting matter concerning the fairs are published in the paper it should be taken by every fair-goer.

It is the intention of the publisher to issue the second annual Christmas number of the Reporter about the 15th Dec., 1894. The marked success of last year's venture will be a guarantee that the second issue will far surpass anything ever attempted in Central Canada. The proprietor will be pleased to give estimates for cuts and space in the coming edition and is prepared to take views for cuts or portraits for use in the special number, at any time.
