COLD APRICOT
GLAZED HAM

There are many types of Easter ham, follow cooking directions per pound in any good cook book. I usually boil my ham right in its package then bake the following glaze on it on Easter morning and then chill until dinner. I use Smuckers Apricot Jam that I acquire on my cross-border shopping trips because I am hooked on the stuff but I am sure that marmalade would work just as well. Trim fat to an even thickness. Gash 2 or 3 large concentric circles in the top of the remaining fat towards the shank end. Place ham in a shallow roast pan, rub top and sides with a mixture of flour and dry mustard. If the flour-mustard mixture is rubbed in well the glaze will cling more evenly. Combine 2 cups of Apricot Jam, 1-2 Tbsp. prepared mustard, 1/4 cup corn syrup and 1/4 cup of brown sugar in a saucepan. Heat and stir until bubbly. Cool slightly and spoon and spread over top and sides of ham. Bake at 400 ° for 15 minutes. Spread more glaze over ham to cover any bare areas and bake 1--15 minutes longer. Remove from oven and brush any remaining glaze where needed. Chill, lift to a platter. Garnish with branches of mint and cut out cheese flowers. Secure flowers with toothpicks and add bits of red cherries for centres. I keep forgetting to start that basket of mint but I do have parsley year-round and it looks beautiful.
