

later was the engineer who constructed the 1937 school down near the lake. This 1898 school was considered the last word in school construction even though it was built on a barren, rocky hill with no area for a playground. The neighbouring rocks and woods proved ideal places for recreation. John B. Harvey was the first teacher in the Senior room and Thomas Duncan in the Junior room.

Classes continued in this school until the new Public and Continuation school was opened on Feb. 1, 1938.

LYNDHURST CONTINUATION SCHOOL

The Lyndhurst Continuation school opened in Sept. 1922 in Wesley Hall (United Church Hall) with an enrolment of 26. This building continued to serve as a continuation school until the new Elementary and Continuation school opened Feb. 1, 1938.

Miss Edna Hanna was the first Continuation School teacher and Principal. The School Board and ratepayers felt that much of the ultimate success of this educational venture was due to Miss Hanna's fine personality and untiring efforts.

The second year Miss Eleanor Tett was engaged as a part time teacher in the public school where she taught both Continuation School classes as well as public school classes.

The Continuation School pupils had to walk from one end of the village to the other for classes so this venture was not continued. Accordingly the United Church built an addition to Wesley Hall for an extra classroom. The Dept. of Education did not permit public school money to be used for continuation school purposes and vice versa.

Mr. A.B. Brown manifested his interest in building a new school by collecting $245.00 during 1922 and 1923 from friends of education. At the end of 1927 a balance of $4254.91 had been accumulated. Classes continued from year to year in the same building with each inspector urging that a new school building be constructed.

Finally on May 14, 1937 at a School Board meeting, Frank Warren, Chairman of the School Board made the motion that notices should be posted that a public meeting be held on Tuesday, May 25th to discuss building of a new school.

Hilliard Earl, a faithful and encouraging member of the Board seconded the motion.

Ernest Leadbeater was secretary and the vote was unanimous to issue $20,000. debentures to be used for the construction of a new Public and continuation school. The old public school by that time was antiquated. Work began at once and the classes moved into the new school on Feb. 1, 1938. Public school classrooms were on the first floor and High school classrooms on the upper floor with a Home Economic and a Shop classroom in the basement.

In Sept. 1939, Grade XIII was introduced.

LYNDHURST FAIR

Lyndhurst Fair was held on the grounds now owned by Mrs. Ruth Patrick and Gordon Patrick.

The Lyndhurst Agricultural Association was formed in 1877 under the direction of J.C. Stafford and E.C. Sliter. Mr. R. W. Copeland was chiefly responsible for later fairs and in 1892 purchased the fair grounds from the Henry Green estate. A high board fence topped with barbed wire enclosed the grounds on the East and North while the river bounded the grounds on the West and South. A ticket office and large entrance gates faced the street and a race track circled the grounds. A large display house of four rooms in the form of a Maltese cross stood in the centre of the grounds. Here the exhibits were displayed. The fair was carried on each fall until 1914.

Mr. Copeland who was proprietor of the Riverside hotel also lived in the Buttrey house. He sold out his interests in Lyndhurst and moved to Brockville.
