When an artist like a cook?—When he is drawing a little duck.

The higher classes—the "lure" classes.—The lower classes—the "hire" classes.

When a man professes water to be spirituous liquor he is a well wisher.

Bards of "chin" music are now being organized on the street corners.

Keep on good terms with your wife, your stomach, and your conscience.

A rich man may make a poor husband but almost any girl is willing to take the risk.

In these dull times it is pleasant to contemplate that there is no discount on musical notes.

When we read of Bowen, Beecher, Babcock and Belknap, we may well inquire: "Can such things be?"

A lady, condemning the wearing of moustaches, declared: "It is one of the fashions I set my face against."

"Friend, imitate the example of a locomotive. He runs along, whistles over his work, and never takes anything but water to wet his whistle with."

That was a fearful jest of Lord Norbury's on sentencing to death a thief who had stolen a watch—"You made a great mistake, my lad, but you eluded eternity."

"I say, boy, whose horse is that you are riding?"

"Why, it's daddy's?"

"Who is your daddy?"

"Why, don't you know?—he's uncle Peter Jones."

"So you're the son of your uncle; how do you make that out, young man?"

"Well, I don't know exactly how," replied the boy, "but you see daddy goes to be a widower, and married mother's sister, who is aunt Sally, and so he's my uncle now."

The Essex Times tells the people of Kent to beware of a swindler of the name of Clay, alias McHenry, &c., who goes about pretending to be a detective or officer, and boldly arrests his victims, whom he allows to go upon payment of money. He has bled quite a number throughout Essex, and is presumably making his way into Kent.

He is said to be from thirty to thirty-five years old, of slight build, light complexion, with light side-whiskers. His last attempt was made near Stoney Point.

The Arrprior Star gives the following particulars of the horrible accident at the woollen factory in that town, on Friday, 10th inst. Mary Stuart, an employee, while sweeping the floor, was caught by a revolving shaft, by the hair of the head, and the wheel of her scalp was torn off from the nape of the neck to the forehead. One eye is damaged, and both ears are gone. It was the most sickening sight, to see a bare skull with bright eyes in it. She does not experience any great pain, and only complains of a fullness in her head. If inflammation does not set in, she will most likely recover. It will be remembered that a girl was killed in a manner similar to the way in which the accident occurred, in this factory, some four years since. The proprietors of the factory have had the shaft encased to prevent the possibility of accident in future.
