

I WOULDN'T WOULD YOU? When a lady is seen at a party or ball, Her eyes vainly turned in her sister's coil...

When an upstart is seen on the stage strutting out, With his hat cocked askant and a gasp in his eye...

When a wife runs about at her neighbor's door, Leaving children at home, unprotected to play...

When a husband is idle, neglecting his work, In the quiet-house, snoring with quavering snore...

When a boy at his school, lounging over his book, Sits scribbling his head, and neglecting his work...

When a tradesman his neighbor's fair terms will decrie, And keeps pulling his goods at a wondrous rate...

When in murderous deeds a man's hands are embroiled, The revenge in his plan, and the crime is concealed...

When a husband and wife keep their secret apart, Not a word to his spouse about this or that...

When a man who has lived here for years but himself, Feels laid on his strong frame the cold hand of death...

When a man who has lived here for years but himself, Feels laid on his strong frame the cold hand of death...

When a man who has lived here for years but himself, Feels laid on his strong frame the cold hand of death...

When a man who has lived here for years but himself, Feels laid on his strong frame the cold hand of death...

When a man who has lived here for years but himself, Feels laid on his strong frame the cold hand of death...

When a man who has lived here for years but himself, Feels laid on his strong frame the cold hand of death...

When a man who has lived here for years but himself, Feels laid on his strong frame the cold hand of death...

Odds and Ends. He who withhold his influence from the right gives it to the wrong.

There is more nutriment in a loaf of bread than in a barrel of whiskey.

The cost of the public schools of the city of New York and the police, is $8,000,000 per year.

Politeness costs but a trifle, yet it may secure to us a life-long friendship.

Old bachelors will read with subdued joy the following epitaph, on one of their order, written by himself:

At three o'clock winter and I died, A cherless being, sole and sad; The nuptial knot I never tied, And wished my father never had.

Recipe for making a Russian name: take three alphabets and shake them up in a hat, then throw on a table, like dice—pick out those that all right side up, stick them in a line, and add either the "tel" or the "off" and you have a genuine, full fledged Russian general's name.

The caterpillar has only disappeared for a season, and will soon be seen in the shape of a white moth. Just now they may be found on the trees, in the corners of houses, and such places, where they have made for themselves a temporary dwelling...

Can't you give a feller a lift? remarked a red nosed tramp, poking his head in the door of a country store. "Well, I reckon I can," answered the proprietor, as he lifted him about ten feet, with the end of his boot.
